What is Pilates?

Pilates is a safe and highly effective method of exercising based on the work of Joseph Pilates (1880–1967). Using an anatomical understanding of the body's muscular and skeletal systems, Joseph Pilates developed exercises that built strength without adding bulk and balanced that strength with flexibility. The proven health benefits and tremendous feeling of well-being that you take away from each class will encourage you to do Pilates for the rest of your life.

Who is it for?

The slow, controlled teaching approach of Pilates means that it is ideal for most adults and all ages – from first-time exercisers to those needing rehabilitation after injury or operation, to athletes looking to enhance their performance and avoid the risk of injury.

Body Control Pilates®

Body Control Pilates is widely seen as a benchmark for safe and effective teaching of the highest quality. London-based, The Body Control Pilates Association is Europe's largest professional body for Pilates teachers. Members have all, at a minimum, completed a comprehensive training course in Body Control Pilates matwork, and are required to continually develop their knowledge and skills. Body Control Pilates teachers work to a Code of practice that governs teaching standards and professional ethics. All teachers hold valid insurance and CPR certification.

Deborah has devoted her working life to movement and exercise. Having trained and worked as a dance teacher in her family's dance school in Coventry, Deborah taught in Germany and Switzerland before returning to UK. She introduced aerobics to Ayrshire in 1982, then taught various forms of exercise before discovering Pilates. Deborah trained with renowned Pilates instructor Gordon Thomson (www.bcpilates.com) and completed her Body Control Pilates matwork course in 2001. She has since qualified to teach with both Cadillac and Reformer apparatus. Her small class sizes (maximum 12) and private studio sessions allow her to tailor exercises to clients' needs and ensure personal supervision at all times.
